Description

The major programs in accounting provide students with the academic training and experience needed to become professional accountants. Job opportunities include careers in public accounting, business and industry, not-for-profit organizations, and government. The Accounting program is designed for students who plan to enter public accounting or other professional accounting fields. The General Accounting program is appropriate for individuals who plan to enter other areas of accounting or to complement other programs of study.

Student Learning Outcomes

In addition to the comprehensive learning outcomes listed in the Whitman School's Undergraduate Education description, students in this major are expected to achieve the following additional learning outcomes:

1. Prepare corporate financial statements. Identify and apply all steps of the accounting cycle
2. Research financial accounting, auditing, and tax issues to develop appropriate recommendations and conclusions
